Boston, Mass., April 18.—Washington won the last game of the series from Boston to-day by 4 to 0.

"Long Tom" Hughes pitched a mas terly game, and the Bostons could not hit him when a hit meant runs. Oberlin on the other hand, was batted rather freely and at the right time. It is said that he is a "splt-ball" artist, but as the weather was cold he could not take a chance with this style of delivery. It was edsy to se, onto his straight ball, and in trying to keep it away from the batsman he gave several passes to first, Despite the weather, Hughes was in fine form. In the fourth inning Collins led off with a two-bagger over Altizer's head. Unglaub was passed, and then Hughes got down to business. Hoey failed twice in attempts to sacrifice, and then struck out. Fred Parent, another dangerous man at such a stage, was fooled into going after three wide ones, and then Ferris was forced to hit to

In the sixth, Hughes again showed that New York, April 18.—The New Yorks he had the goods in a pinch, Sullivan hit Coombs hard in the second and singled, and Collins followed with anthird innings to-day and drove him other. Unglaub put the runners on third and second by sacrificing. It was then up to Hoey, and likewise to Mr. Hughes, to bring in runs, and to prevent its being done. Tom made good by again ing done. Tom made good by again striking out the ex-collegian, and Parent was an easy third out when he hit a
